Proceedings of the Forty-Sixth Congress.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, May 27. The bill relative to the removal of cases from state to federal courts came up in the morning hour, the pending question being on seconding the previous question. Mr. Wood appealed to Mr. Townsend, of Illinois, who was in charge of the bill, to permit its reference or recommittal to all other committees. Mr Townsend regarded it as his duty to press for action on the bill. The republicans then resorted to the policy of withholding their votes, and this made necessary a call of the house.

The bill on national quarantine being considered, Mr. Conger advocated the bill, which, if it meant anything, meant that the federal government had supreme absolute authority over the states. If state rights could interfere with the exercise of this omnipotent powers of congress to defend the people, let them come; the friends of state rights dare not make that question paramount when the lives of thousands of their fellow citizens were quivering in the balance between the doctrine of state rights and the power of the general government to fence out pestilence and disease and death. To day in this bill in the interest of humanity, in the interest of health and life, it was gratifying to see his state rights friends relinquishing their principles and cast behind them their antiquated notions of states rights and rise in the strength of their humanity to stand by a nation-al government's performance of its duty to its people. He would hail the passage this bill as not only saving thousands of lives, but as redeeming the country by one more essay from that worse pestilence, states rights.

The house then proceeded to consider the bill by sections, after which Mr. Young moved the previous question on the whole bill which was seconded and the senate bill passed without amendment. It now only awaits the President's signature to become a law.

SENATE.

Senator McDonald asked leave to present a petition of ex-soldiers and sailors of Providence, protesting against violations of civil service reform, especially in relation to the appointment of customs officers in Providence, and alleging interference by federal officers in elections. The memorial seeming to reflect on Senator Anthony, who was absent, Senator Burnside explained the circumstances alluded to in the memorial, and after a spirited debate on the reception of the papers, they went over till to-morrow on objections.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Sale of Four per Cents.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The following was issued by the treasury department to-day: After to-day no more certificates will be sold by the treasurer of the United States over his counter, nor will any be furnished by him to public officers for sale in this city or Boston, New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore. The secretary desires that the remainder of the certificates unsold be distributed as far as practicable among the postmasters bonded for their sale at places other than those above mentioned.

No Concession to Custom.

PHILLIPOPOLIS, May 27.—Gov. Aliki Pasha had announced his intention to discard the fez and wear the Bulgarian hat, but Gen'l Stalypin has received a dispatch saying the sultan insists that the governor shall wear the fez. The fez is regarded as an emblem of the old Turkish regime, so the decision has created much excitement here. If persisted in, it will make a great difference in the character of Aliki Pasha's reception, though no disturbance is apprehended.

Introduction of Good Stock.

LEAVENWORTH, May 27.—The short-horn sale at the Rock farm of C. J. Stone, jr., near the city which took place to-day was the most successful short horn sale ever held in the Missouri valley. The animals were all thoroughbreds. Eighty head were sold, the bulls averaged $130, all yearling heifers averaged $205, cows $196, total average, $184. Total receipts were $14,700. All the best animals sold were to residents of the county. The attendance from abroad was large.

Democratic Caucus.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—At an informal meeting of the democratic conference committees held to-night, a general interchange of views was had up in the appropriation bills and others measures pending before congress. A member of the committee who left previous to adjournment said there had been no propositions submitted and that the purpose of the meeting was to enable the members to freely express themselves on various questions at issue. The meeting was slimly attended, Cox, Carlisle, Hampton and Jones being absent. In reply to an inquiry to night Cox said he did not anticipate that the southern democrats intended to request northern members of the party to map out a plan of future procedure as has been stated. Should they lose he did not favor any such transaction as in his opinion, the southern members should shirk the responsibility of any caucus action by which the party will be bound.

The Savings-Bank Tragedy.

ST. LOUIS, May 27.—Major Goldsoll, young Kriewitz's quondam partner in the Denison, Texas, bank failure, has turned up in Denison, Texas, where he has a store and good stock of goods. It is reported he will make an assignment to-day. It is not known whether an officer has been for him but it is likely means will be taken for his arrest. His stock of jewelry here and his household goods have been attached by creditors.

Good Templars.

DETROIT, May 27.—The twenty-fifth annual session of the right worthy grand lodge of Good Templars began here to-day. A large number of delegates were present. T. D. Konouse, of Wisconsin, right worthy grand templar, in his report expresses thankfulness for the wonderful growth which in one quarter of a century has increased from one subordinate lodge to seven thousand, from a handful of members to 750,000.

An Indian Convention.

RAUFALA, I. T., May 27. The convention of civilized tribes met in this place to-day and organized with the election of Ward Coachmanchief of the Creeks, as chairman, J. H. Moore, sec'y. The following delegates represented their respective nations: W. R. Ross, Judge Geo. Sanders, Cherokees; C. E. Nelson, J. H. Moore, Creeks; J. L. Co., D. F. Okfuskee, Judge J. J. Woods, Chickasaws; Col. D. R. McIntosh, J. R. Moore, Creeks; Micco Creeks, Pashutshaki, Thomas Cloud, Seminoles, Yak-koma Pheniss, Sac and Foxes. There is great interest manifested. The object of the convention is to take into consideration the question of territory by colonists locating on the so called ceded lands west of the nations. At a meeting held this evening speeches were made by Pleasant Porter, W. P. Ross, Gov. Overton, Col. McIntosh, and G. W. Grayson.

Before the Battle.

CINCINNATI, May 27.—Full delegations are in the city to-night for to-morrow's convention, which will be the largest ever held in the state. The chief point of interest centers in the head of the ticket, and friends of Foster and Taft appear equally sanguine of success. Foster's friends claim 305 delegates pledged to his support, while Taft's say that counting all opposed to him they still have 301 secured for their chief. Seven hundred and seventy-four delegates comprise the whole convention. A strong feeling favoring the nomination of John Sherman and forcing him to accept the leadership is the best of authority for saying that if his name is presented, his positive declination will be at once given to the convention. There is much less talk about the remaining positions on the ticket. Still an active party is making for Lewis Dasorgood, of this city, for second place, provided Foster is nominated. Taft's friends are anxious that Foster should accept the second place.

FOREIGN.

English Sporting.

LONDON, May 27.—Betting on the Derby is 200 to 1 against Uncas, Cadogen, Bhartbert and Victor Chief are first three in the call. Uncas arrived yesterday at Epsom with Parole. The latter is regarded sure to win the gold cup Friday, and possibly by a walk over, as he has 10 pounds allowance because of being bred in America.

The rowing match between Plaisted and Nicholson for one hundred pounds a side has been arranged for the 23d of June.

The Great Ship Canal.

LONDON, May 27. The figures of estimated comparative cost of routes proposed for the ship canal to unite the Atlantic and Pacific as given in yesterday's dispatch are probably wrong. A Paris dispatch says the sub-commission on cost of work reported that the Tehauntepec project would cost £40,000,000 without including costs of terminal ports, the Nicaraugua £78,000,000, the Panama £43,000,000 exclusive of indemnity to the railway company, the San Blas £52,000,000, and the Alrato Nipipi route £44,000,000.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

The suit of Maria G. Blair, formerly Mrs. Gen. Granger, to have her marriage with Capt. Thos. Blair annulled on account of his bigamy, has been decided in her favor by referee.

The Catholic colonization society of the United States held a meeting at New York to-day, attended by Archbishop Williams, Bishops Ireland, Spalding, Lancaster, O'Conner, Ryan and others and agreed to call a public meeting to further its purpose of aiding colonists to settle in the west. This movement has the hearty approval of Cardinal McCloskey.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Subscriptions of the 4 per cent. refunding certificates since Monday's report, $33,500,860.

The president has nominated S. W. Craycraft, of West Virginia, U. S. attorney for Idaho.

The senate then took up the bill to make subsidiary coin exchangeable for lawful money, and without acting thereon, adjourned.

The president's veto message of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill will be sent to the house of representatives to-day.

Action of the president on the legislative appropriation bill having been discussed at the meeting of the cabinet on Friday, the subject was not brought up again to day.

Commissioner Hoyt, of the Indian bureau, has returned from New York. The annual purchases of Indian goods have been completed, and a considerable portion shipped to the agencies. Prices this year have been remarkably low, and purchases eminently satisfactory to the department. The contracts for transportation have been made at unprecedentially low rates, and it is believed with responsible parties.

At the cabinet meeting yesterday, the attorney general gave an opinion in relation to the Eads jetties to the effect that Capt. Eads is entitled to the payment of $850,000 claimed to be due under his contract, notwithstanding the slight falling up of the river above the jetties, and the secretary of war has ordered the payment to be made. The same officer also submitted an opinion in the case of P. N. Coleman, a citizen of Tennessee, who was tried by murder by court martial during the war and sentenced. He was subsequently taken out of the hands of the military, and tried by state courts, sentenced to be executed, but on appeal to the U. S. supreme court, the action of the state courts was set aside. The attorney general held that the sentence of the court martial is not affected by the decision of the supreme court, and can be carried into execution; but in view of the circumstances and time when the crime was committed and the lapse of time which has occurred since the commission, he recommends that the president commute his sentence to imprisonment for life.

FOREIGN NOTES.

Prince Alexander, the new sovereign of Bulgaria, will visit Balmoral next week by the queen's invitation.

The arbitration to whom was referred the question of the reduction of the wages of the South Yorkshire coal miners decides against any reduction whatever. The decision affects 500,000 men and boys.

THE CURRENCY QUESTION.

Notwithstanding the fact that thousands of our people are at present worrying themselves almost to death over this vexed question, even to the extent of neglecting their business, their homes and their duty to their families, there are still thousands upon thousands of smart, hard working, intelligent men pouring into the great Arkansas Valley, the Garden of the West, where the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad owners them their choice of 3,500,000 acres of the finest farming lands in the world at almost their own prices. If you do not believe it, write to the undersigned, who will tell you where you can get a cheap land exploring ticket, and how, at a moderate expense, you can see for yourself and be convinced.

REV. JOSEPH ADAMS, MRS. J. A. D. ADAMS, Homœpathic Physician, and MR. G. K. HARTENSTEIN, Attorney at Law, Leadville.

The Springs are situated at the mouth of Cottonwood Cañon, in a most beautiful country, salubrious atmosphere, surrounded by scenery of the most gorgeous description, being in the very heart of the Sawatche range, Mount Yale lying to the north, and Mount Princeton to the south. The crystal waters of the Cottonwood River, abundant with trout, come dashing and sparkling down past the door of the Sanitarium from its fountain head, the eternal beds of snow which cap the hoary old mountain.

Next Friday is Decoration Day.

Yesterday was Jay Gould's birthday. He is forty-five years old.

The Catholic church congregation at Central has elected Colonel J. S. Dormer, of the Register Call, one of its trustees for the ensuing year.

It is reported the Judge T. M. Bowen contemplates resigning his position in order to give his exclusive attention to his large mining interests.

The gambling spirit is on the increase in the state. The pools sold during the three days of the running races last week were fully a hundred per cent greater than at any previous meeting.

We learn that Mr. Halsey M. Rhodes has gone over from the Industrial Press to the Hotel Reporter. Mr. Rhodes was formerly editor of the Mountaineer. We wish him abundant sucess.

The Denver Pinafore company talk of visiting Colorado Springs. We hope they will come, and should they make this venture we are sure they will be received with an overflowing house.

The Colorado Springers lately held a meeting in the rooms of the Y. M. C. A., to plan a fitting surprise for the State Press Association at its coming meeting in that town. It might also be well for the Y. M. C. A. to hold extra meetings about that time. Denver Times.

Saguache has organized a county mutual protective association having for its object the mutual protection of its members against the depredations of horse and cattle thieves. Horse stealing may be a difficult art, but if a man steals a horse near Saguache he soon gets the hang of the thing.

The Union fish and irrigation company filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state Monday morning. The company organizes for the purpose of building ditches and a reservoir for irrigating purposes and for the purpose of forming a basin for boating, fishing, etc. The stock is to be $10,000, divided into 10 shares.

The resignation of Dr. W. H. Williams as a member of the state board of health, was accepted by Governor Pitkin yesterday. Dr. Williams' retirement is due to his health, which did not enable him to attend the meetings as he wished. His successor is Dr. H. K. Steele, his partner, and a most estimable gentleman and popular physician.

The Juvenile Hose.

The boys who have been anxiously awaiting the completion of their hose cart were gratified with a trial of their new apparatus yesterday. The little fellows came out strongly in a neat uniform of red shirts and blue trousers with a white stripe down the hem. Their caps were blue with a red band.

The little hose cart glittered with red paint and the boys rattled along at a lively pace running with the machine. A trial "squirt" was had, and the boys went home wet and happy.

Kate Claxton at Court House Hall.

Miss Kate Claxton and her excellent company were greeted last night by a large and fashionable audience. The play of the Double Marriage affords a fine opportunity for the display of emotional acting, and Miss Claxton fully sustained the high reputation she has achieved. Mr. Charles A. Stephenson is a handsome, polished and graceful actor, who plays con amore, and gives his clever wife a pleasing and competent support.

Of course the costumes were elegant and appropriate, and also, of course, the scenery was a minus quantity. However, as the drama is not at all spectacular, the absence of scenic effects was not so great a detraction from the enjoyment of the evening as it would otherwise have been. The stage accommodations are very inadequate, but the troupe made the best of everything, and the audience testified their enjoyment by frequent and hearty applause.

The real live baby, which submitted to be kissed and fondled with a perfect self-control, at once became a favorite, and responded gracefully to a recall. The entertainment was artistic and complete so far as the players were concerned, and was most thoroughly enjoyed.

A Small Fire.

An alarm of fire was given yesterday about noon. It was difficult at first to determine where the fire was but at last the people discovered the roof of the house on East Kiowa street, occupied by Mr. Acorn, to be on fire. Hose Company No. 2 got out first, with only a few men on the ropes, closely followed by No. 1 with a larger force. The Hooks brought up the rear. None of the companies got farther than the Presbyterian church as by the time they reached that place the fire had been extinguished.

The fire originated, probably, from a tinners' furnace which was being used by workmen who were repairing the roof. No especial damage was done as the prompt application of two streams of water from garden hose extinguished the flames.

Several horses were frightened by the hose carts, and one, belonging Mr. A. L. Millard, broke away and dashed down the street at full speed. The vehicle to which it was attached suffered a wreck before the horses could be caught.

A Letter on Temperance.

To the Editor of the Gazette:

It is well for the people of Colorado Springs to be informed of the work that is being done by our worthy mayor in the attempt to stop the promiscuous sale of intoxicating drinks in the back rooms of drug stores and at other places. A large meeting under the direction of the Christian Temperance Union was held Sabbath evening at Court House Hall, at which the course of the mayor was highly commended and the sentiment that more strenuous efforts than have ever been made to bring to justice those who are violating the city ordinances was heartily applauded. Remarks were made by the Revds. J. H. Scott, Cleveland, Ohio; W. A. Hyde, E. R. Wood and R. T. Cross. A keeper of a drug store pleaded guilty to the charge of selling whiskey and last week paid a fine of $75.00 and costs. There are two charges against another drug store proprietor which are to be decided by jury, and both may possibly be appealed. Your news columns will give the details of these cases. It has been stated that falsehoods were uttered by the person who in the first two cases mentioned purchased the whiskey; that the plea was made that it was for a sick friend. This is utterly untrue, and for the satisfaction of that part of the community whose approbation is worth anything, all that is necessary is that I should make this statement over my own name.

All citizens who are in favor of a prohibition law and who voted for the present mayor and council ought certainly to give their sympathy to those who dare to attack this growing evil of the sale of strong drink.

JAMES GOODMAN.

Our Cotemporary's Poet.

The Mountaineer has engaged a poet in order to compete with the GAZETTE. The readers of our esteemed cotemporary are threated with a deluge of "poms" such as we gave them a sample of last week. The "pick" who writes through the same quill employed by the editor of the Mountaineer, sent us an effusion some weeks ago. We promptly suppressed it but in order to give the public a taste of the writer's quality we now print a few of the verses we formerly rejected. The author forgot to put a head on his production; we can only call the verses

DREADFUL.

"In the GAZETTE there is some poems,
I believe they air railrode rymes,
Talking about the railrode,
And about the "men of our times"

Still more mity men keep coming,
From down on the Santa Fe,
Skulking around our depots,
To shoot us by night or day.

You see these men are patent
With pistol and shooting mouth
And made by the Santa Fe
Is why they come from the South

But being no railrode rymist,
I'll simply say for the while,
I am glad the Rio Grandy
One in there eastearn trial."

Little Pittsburg People.

The gentlemen, whose names are given below, have purchased stock in the Little Pittsburg, which has been stocked at $20,000,000, and are now in Leadville inspecting the mines: Brayton Ives, president New York Stock Exchange; Charles C. Dodge, A. J. Dam, proprietor Astor House; S. B. Elkins, a delegate to congress from New Mexico; L. C. Babcock, superintendent Adams Express; Jesse R. Grant, son of ex-President Grant; Z. L. White, New York Tribune; Mr. Dow, Providence (R. I.) Journal; Ross Benton, of the Boston Advertiser; Hon. H. A. W. Tabor, D. H. Moffat, George Fryer, C. R. Bissel and others.

The Liquor Cases.

The first case against Mr. Austin, Mr. Kennedy's clerk, who is charged with violating the city ordinance relating to the sale of intoxicating drinks, was adjourned yesterday morning to await the recovery of one of the jurymen who is ill. A second case came up for trial before Justice Stewart in the afternoon and was finally adjourned until this morning, when the prosecution will finish the presentation of evidence.

THE LEADVILLE FIRE!

A Panic Stricken City.

Graphic Account from the Leadville Chronicle.

The following graphic account of the fire in the vicinity of Leadville is condensed from the Chronicle of Saturday afternoon last:

The excitement among the cabin owners in the northeastern portion of the city this afternoon has not had its equal since the first burning of Chicago. At two o'clock the roadways leading to the center of the city were lined with men and women, all hurrying from the flames with bundles of clothing and what else could be quickly snatched from their cabins. At this hour, two o'clock p. m., the reporter counts cabins on fire belonging to the following parties: T. C. McDivett, two; L. G. Rosser the lawyer, two; J. A. Russ, one; Hoag Lester, one; A. R. Brooks, one; W. Neal, three; S. S. Sindleger, one; Mr. Dearby, four; Dr. Bell, one; J. J. Johnson, one; John Raymond, one.

These are the cabins now in flames and in sight.

The present fire originated on the south side of the Oro ditch on the premises of Mr. August Meyer at about 11 o'clock this forenoon. It was kindled as a back fire, the principal object being the protection of property. A very high gale of wind came up a little before noon, and sat the little blaze started among the chips and sticks in a garden leaping and lashing through the dry brush and dead logs to the north, widening and spreading in its course until the entire district northeast of the city hospital is one sheet of fire. The citizens in the neighborhood made no effort whatever to stop the progress of the flames but only thought of preserving the contents of their cabins. The fire department was unnotified, and only about a dozen citizens aside from those living in the immediate neighborhood, were in the vicinity of the fire.

At 2:15 the wind is blowing a perfect gale from the southwest, should it veer around to the north or northwest, with the headway the fire is now under, there is no power in Colorado that can save the upper half of the city of Leadville from destruction. The smoke from the fire and dust from the city is so blinding at this writing that a person cannot be seen ten yards away. Thus far the reporter has been enable to chronicle the progress of the flames from a deserted cabin, but the flames have now reached it and he is obliged to make a hasty retreat. The wind continues favorable, and the danger for the thickly settled portion of the city is lessening.

2:30. A large number of citizens have just arrived and a general war upon the flames is begun. A water course is being dug from the Oro ditch in hopes to flood the unburned district adjacent to the city hospital. Should this be accomplished, and with a continual assistance from the wind there are but little grounds to fear that the fire will reach the city proper.

Just at this writing word comes that a man in attempting to cross the path of the fire became suffocated by the smoke and has perished. The truth of the statements cannot be verified till the fire has moved on sufficiently to allow of a person visiting the spot designated.

3 P. M. The only hope for the city at present writing is the wind; should that subside or veer to the north Leadville will be in ashes before the up-town folks at least have time to eat their supper. In addition to the cabins burned as reported above, is that of Dennis Maddegan, the steward of the Tontine restaurant. He had just made the purchase for two hundred dollars and taken possession. It is now in ashes. Thieves are thick. The Ten Mile road from the Sisters' hospital is lined with piles of clothing and household goods. It hardly seems probable, but is nevertheless a fact, that thieves have been operating extensively in the past hour. They have come up the road boldly and carried away goods, parties witnessing the act supposing them to be owners.

A man named has just been injured by the falling of a tree, under the top of which he is buried. His injuries are not dangerous. The wind at this moment is fearful. A man can scarcely stand in front of it.

Traffic over the Ten Mile road is completely cut off. Teams found out came as far as the line of the fire, where they are obliged to turn back. The most of them load with goods taken from the burning cabins and return to the city.

A reporter started to the scene of the other fire and found affairs in as terrible condition as it were well possible for there to be. The flames crossed the Oro road early in the morning and sped rapidly towards the Iron mine, where about sixty men were fighting to their utmost to save the hoisting works. Along the road from California Gulch to Park City were piled the worldly effects of a least twenty different parties, miners, wood cutters, and other laborers, with and without families, while their cabins were rapidly going down before the roaring element. Men running from their work to their homes, hardly as fast as the flames took wing, to save even a portion of their effects. Women screaming and children crying and nearly scared to death, clinging to their mothers, is a conception of the scenes along the road. On the Park City road, near the Gallagher mine, everybody was at work—some cutting trees, others pouring water upon the roofs, while still others were hurriedly carrying out goods and provisions. The families in the greatest danger are as follows: Mrs. Chaplin, a large two-story house, valued at two thousand dollars; Geary's, worth fully as much; Tom. O'Brien, J. Gallagher, Wm. Douglas, Wm. Bards, a boarding-house, and Wm. Custer, John Byand and Wm. Bond are already burned out.

Slick and clean, Tho. Mahalay hoisting works, the Agassiz, Gono-Abroad and Paris mine buildings are not to be saved. An attempt was made by the reporter to go to Park City, but the flames were so intensely hot that it was impossible to cross their path, and ere this that little town must be in ashes. Several teams going up the road had barely time to retrace their steps. The sight presented was a grand one; the whole country there-about presented the appearance of a gorgeous sunset, but deeply blood tinged, suggesting the awful potency that the lurid glare betokened. The wind veered in different directions so that no cabin seemed safe for more than a moment at a time.

FROM A LATER EDITION.

The terrible forest fires which for three days past have been raging both north and south of the city, and which yesterday partially died away, were about noon increased and formed into waves of fire, rolling along the mountain tops and driving down into the valleys. All day yesterday the brave Leadville fire boys were out, doing all in their power to defeat the action of the element on Capitol Hill and its immediate vicinity. Last night the working forces flattered themselves that the fire was when they left it quite under control, and indeed as a reward for their efforts and labor, it seemed cruel that they should this morning find all their work had gone for nothing.

Reports reaching the city from all sections this afternoon were of a character calculated to alarm the people for the safety of the city. At noon all roads leading to Leadville were cut off from travelers except that leading out in the direction of Malta, and at about half past one a messenger arrived from that direction and alarmed the Mayor by a report that the flames had leaped the Arkansas and were making up the Gulch at this side of Malta. The Mayor at once sent out couriers in the direction of the new danger who reported that there was, fortunately, at least no immediate danger from flames down the gulch as there seemed not to be material enough for it to feed on to enable it to reach the suburbs of the city.

All the members of the city council and Clerk Murphy were mounted about three o'clock and galloped off in different directions to report the fire's progress to the mayor. The reports coming down from Stray Horse Gulch were alarming and messengers reported at three o'clock that there seemed no possibility of saving Adelaide City and the great mines adjoining it. The greater danger to the city, however, was and is now from the direction of Capitol Hill. Should a strong wind in the direction of the city spring up and sweep over the hill the hope of saving the city from total destruction seems too discouraging to even contamplate.

The loss by the destruction of cabins, mills and coal pits between the city and the Arkansas is very great, and the losses are among a class of people who can illy afford them. And from these poor victims of the flames, now rendered homeless and houseless, comes the complaint that thieves are operating in their midst, taking everything valuable which had by the greatest exertions been saved from the fire. Special officers have been detailed to look after and arrest these heartless thieves, and if one of their number is handed over to some of the outraged victims for trial and sentence no one will regret it.

The city was this afternoon cut off entirely from telegraphic communication, and it is feared that it will require several days to again join us by wire to the outside world. About the time the wires went down inquiries began to come in from Denver and other quarters from parties interested in Leadville mines and city property, and the wildest rumors are said to be prevailing on the outside and great alarm felt for the safety of the city.

AROUND ADELAIDE.

A mounted reporter for the Chronicle made a second attempt and this time succeeded in forcing his way up through the dense smoke to Adelaide City. There he found the wildest excitement prevailing, the flames of the great fire roaring just on the edge of the little village, all of whose residents were out fighting the fire, and were every hour being reinforced by the miners who were driven in before the flames, in many instances reporting that they had lost all their possessions. Along the road while going up the reporter found a mine, the shaft house of which was on fire, and the occuping explosions of giant powder seemed to shake the solid hills and lend additional terror to the already frightful scenes at the furnace this side of Adelaide. The bullion was being removed by couriers across the creek to a place of safety, as it seemed that the furnace must melt before the flames.

The Double-Decker works are charred and blackened, so narrow was their escape from destruction, and but for a fortunate and sudden change in the wind, they would certainly have been burned. Indeed the safety of Adelaide City now depends wholly on the changes in the wind, the current blowing at the time of the visit of our reporter being favorable to its safety.

Communication with the Iron Mine and others in its vicinity has by the fire been completely cut on, and reports, not wholly trustworthy, say that all buildings on the mines there have been destroyed.

ALONG CAPITOL AND FRYER HILL.

A few incidents of the Capitol Hill fire can be but briefly related.

Mr. Hiram Forsyth was lying in his cabin, a little west of the Ten-Mile road, too sick to move. In fact he was at the point of death and could not realize the danger from the fire. The neighbors, through the excitement of the hour, entirely forgot the sick cabiner until the little shanty was in flames. Then the inquiry about his safety was raised, and two men, Walter Stanton and Burlingame, rushed through the flames, seized the dying man and bore him away to the city hospital.

Almost three weeks ago a wood chopper named Francisco died and was buried in the city cemetery. His widow and child, left quite destitute, wrote on to friends in the east for money to pay their passage back to Ohio, and while waiting, continued to occupy the little cabin in the woods. This afternoon the widow and little boy visited the postoffice and on their return found their home with its entire contents in ashes. Mr. John Welch learning their fate took them to the comfortable residence of his family on lower Carbonate avenue where they will be well provided for.

Mr. R. H. Dilloway, seeing the near approach of the flames, carefully removed all the furniture and effects from his cabin to a place of safety, and then quietly stood by and saw the cabin burn, remarking as the flames shot up from the tarred roof, that he "didn't care two cents as he was going to leave the blasted country next Tuesday, anyhow." After the cabin was reduced to a few smouldering logs he happened to think that his big leather pocket-book, in which he kept his money and valuable papers, had been left in its hiding place under one of the rafters. He says that its value to him was about twenty-three hundred dollars. A great number of trees were uprooted by the high wind during the afternoon, and a number of persons engaged in fighting the fire and saving goods are reported to have been injured, but nothing definite could be ascertained by the reporter excepting the single case before noticed, and he was not much hurt.

The latest accounts from the Ten Mile road is that the fire is within a half mile of the brewery, which nothing can now save. The shingle mill in that vicinity is reported to be in flames. There is still great apprehension felt for the safety of the upper portion of the city. Some fanatic property owner to the left and below the Little Pittsburg mine has started a back fire, which, notwithstanding the course of the wind, is liable to work backward until it reaches town.

The Ten Mile stage has just come through. The driver reports the fire making terrible havoc northwards. It was on both sides of the road and the driver came near being smothered by the smoke in passing.

A very sad accident of the most easterly fire is sent in by one of our reporters just as this edition is going to press. A cabin took fire in the vicinity of the shingle mill a few minutes ago in which was a dead child. The father is a freighter, and is now on his way up from the end of the track. The child died about 3 o'clock this afternoon, and the dead body was brought down the road in the mother's arms.

An Interview With Jay Gould.

The Denver News with its accustomed energy secured an interview with Jay Gould. As the opinions of this railroad magnate are of interest to the people generally, we give the report in full. The News says:

The Jay Gould party arrived in Denver over the Colorado Central at 10 o'clock last night, on a special train of three splendid palace cars. They left Cheyenne yesterday morning at 6 o'clock, ran up to Georgetown, Silver Plume and Central, and thence to this city. Hon. W. A. H. Loveland, who accompanied the party, left the train at Golden.

The party consists of Mr. Jay Gould and his son George Gould, Captain G. H. Baker, and F. L. Ames of Boston, General G. M. Dodge, Sidney Dillon, and Russell Sage. Mr. S. H. H. Clark, superintendent of the Union Pacific, Mr. A. A. Egbert, superintendent, and Mr. E. L. Berthoud, chief engineer of the Colorado Central, were also on board the train. A News reporter was sent out to Arvada to board the special and, if possible, obtain an interview with Mr. Gould. The great financier was found on the platform of his car, and promptly avowed that he had nothing of interest to give, afterwards referring the reporter to the other gentlemen of the party. The News man was not to be disposed of thus easily, though perfectly aware of the fact that he was tackling the most difficult man in America for an interview. He told Mr. Gould that he was not asked to reveal any railroad plans and negotiations further than his business interests would justify, but that with this limitation, the people of Denver wanted him to talk out as they have a keen interest in him and his operations in this quarter.

The News man was then invited into the car and given a seat by the man of millions, when the train rolled away to Denver, and all the way down, a conversation, in which Mr. Russell Sage participated, resulted in the reporter having the tables turned on him and in his being quite thoroughly interviewed by Mr. Gould on the prospects of Denver and the railroad situation here. Mr. Gould manifested a deep interest in the growth of the city, and said he had watched it closely. He said he liked the climate, the mountain air out here agreed with him, and that he seriously—jokingly though of bettering his fortune by investing in Denver town lots. He wanted to know the prices. A number of questions relating to the Rio Grande litigation, and was asked by the reporter who put it to him whether there was anything in the report that the Kansas Pacific intended to build a branch off from River Bend to Colorado Springs. Mr. Gould said he did not think there was much in the report.

Among other railroad subjects Mr. Gould manifested interest in was the South Park. He asked about the equipment, the number of trains, the traffic it enjoyed, and seemed anxious to receive as much information as it was possible. Referring to the Denver and Colorado officials, capitalists, and in the course of the discussion of railroad policy, and from a home management, Mr. Gould expressed himself of the following bit of unique philosophy: "Our interests are with you. The more freight we can do for you the better. The narrow gauges the more they will be for your city and country, the more hauling for our roads. It is to the interest of the Santa Fe, the Denver and the Southern Colorado roads to get to Kansas City in order to get the haul. If the South Park can get more hands so much the better. It must be pushed forward. Who is to do it? No doubtless try to make it, but the country needs it is capable of supporting it."

In the further course of the interview, speaking from the standpoint of the interests of Denver in case the Rio Grande ext... on to chop off our southern possession of the Denver, Mr. Gould asked with some emphasis: "What is to prevent the Denver & South Park company from building a road through [illegible] and then uniting with the Colorado Central at Golden, or with the Rio Grande at Pueblo, or Denver to Albuquerque, New Mexico?"

This question from Mr. Gould is fraught with much interest, as it has once suggested the feasibility of the Denver & South Park, in opposition to the Rio Grande extension to Pueblo, and the Denver & Rio Grande extension to Albuquerque, New Mexico, in opposition to the Denver & South Park. The construction of the Denver & South Park would have the effect to make Denver, Colorado and the Rio Grande to Albuquerque would be secure beyond question.

The party spent the night in their special train and left this morning for South Park or may go over the Denver & South Park to Leadville. They had not decided when they left Denver. They will leave over the Denver & South Park on their return this evening.

The State Board of Health met in Denver. There was a full session.

The clock on the court house is fifteen minutes last. The railroad time or that of the Gazette is a great nuisance to the appointments.

Judge Bowen returned on the morning train from Leadville.

Dr. Horn returned on the evening to attend the meeting of the state board of health.
